RE: Complaint
Complainant: Tuckerman Babcock, Chairman Alaska Republican Party
Respondents: Joe Miller, Citizens for Joe Miller, Inc. and Restoring Liberty, LLC

Dear Office of General Counsel:

The purpose of this letter is to file a formal complaint against Joe Miller, the Libertarian Party of Alaska candidate for United States Senate, as well as his campaign committee, Citizens for Joe Miller, Inc., and Restoring Liberty, LLC, a limited liability company owned and controlled by Mr. Miller. The above individual and entities ("Respondents") have committed numerous serious violations of the Federal Election Commission Act and regulations.

In general, these violations appear specifically intended to mislead the public in the following ways: 1) conceal from the public his campaign's acceptance of unlawful corporate contributions; 2) concoct and report false "in-kind" contributions that don't actually exist creating a false impression of the sources and level of support for his candidacy; and 3) concealing and omitting many thousands of dollars in expenditures occurring in the third quarter for the purpose of creating the false impression that Miller's campaign has more resources available to it than, in reality, it does. Additionally, Miller's campaign has repeatedly negligently failed to include required disclaimers on communications and materials.

As established by the documents and evidence filed herewith—including Miller's own Third Quarter FEC report—the Respondents have:

- Made illegal corporate contributions to the Miller Campaign.
- Illegally accepted extremely valuable in kind contributions from corporate sponsors.
- Illegally accepted unlawful or excess contributions in the form of free rent for a headquarters.
- Accepted email and other lists from corporate entities without paying fair value.

- Transferred use of corporate Twitter and Facebook accounts without paying fair value.
- Placed a direct link to his U.S. Senate campaign on a for-profit corporate website without paying fair value.
- Made numerous solicitations for campaign donations without a proper disclaimer.
- Utilized yard signs and other materials with inaccurate disclaimers.
- Solicited donations via radio communications without a proper disclaimer.
- Failure to properly disclose various receipts and expenditures.
- Fabricated certain "in-kind" contributions.

On September 16, 2016, Joseph "Joe" Miller filed a Statement of Candidacy for U.S. Senate representing the Alaska Libertarian Party. His principal campaign committee is Citizens for Joe Miller.

Restoring Liberty, LLC is a limited liability company registered with the State of Alaska, Division of Corporations, Business and Professional Licensing. (Exhibit A) Restoring Liberty was created on May 19, 2011 for the purpose of "all other information services", and Joseph Miller is the sole member. Restoring Liberty maintains a news website (joemiller.us), and sends out a daily list serve email. Joe Miller reported in his candidate financial disclosures that he received a salary and/or distributions from Restoring Liberty, LLC in the amount of $22,744.00. (Exhibit B) These distributions make clear that Restoring Liberty is a for profit company.

Following Joe Miller's statement of candidacy, Joe Miller and/or Citizens for Joe Miller immediately began using the Restoring Liberty website almost solely as a campaign website, both failing to include any disclaimers and accepting patently unlawful corporate donations. The website posted several articles specifically advocating for the election of Joe Miller and the defeat of incumbent Senator Lisa Murkowski. In addition, Restoring Liberty began directly posting press releases from Citizens for Joe Miller without providing any disclaimer. These were not articles regarding the issues raised in the releases—rather the releases were simply re-posted and distributed verbatim to Restoring Liberty's thousands of readers. This information in identical format was also included in the emails that were sent out on the Restoring Liberty list serve. (Exhibit C)

The Restoring Liberty website has several corporate sponsors who are listed on joemiller.us. (Exhibit D) It is unknown whether the site has additional, undisclosed corporate sponsors. As described herein and demonstrated in the attached exhibits, Restoring Liberty has been used as the de facto campaign site for Mr. Miller's 2016 campaign. Joe Miller and his campaign have thus illegally accepted corporate contributions from Restoring Liberty and its corporate sponsors who are financing the ongoing operations of Restoring Liberty which Mr. Miller has used principally to support his campaign since announcing his candidacy.

In addition, Restoring Liberty contains direct links to Joe Miller's social media sites, especially Facebook and Twitter. The links from the corporate Restoring Liberty website to these social media sites are illegal corporate contributions. Joe Miller's Twitter account has been continuously used for many years but was rebranded following his candidacy for office. Prior to his campaign, he used Twitter to post Restoring Liberty articles. The transfer of the Twitter account from a corporate account to a campaign account is especially concerning given the value of the 10,000+ followers on Miller's Twitter page prior to his campaign announcement. (Exhibit E) Miller likewise maintained a Facebook account that has been continuously used but has also recently been utilized by his campaign, and at times without disclaimers. Also as with Twitter, there is great concern given the value of access to those multiple thousands of individuals who followed him on Facebook prior to his campaign announcement. (Exhibit F) Finally, a link was recently added to the Restoring Liberty website entitled "US Senate Campaign" which directs users of that corporate website to the Citizens for Joe Miller campaign website, where of course they are immediately asked to contribute. (Exhibit G)

It appears that Restoring Liberty made a further illegal donation in the form of the email list that it maintains. Multiple emails appear to have been sent out using that e-mail list by Citizens for Joe Miller containing donation solicitations. Furthermore, the email signup on the Restoring Liberty website and the campaign page are substantially similar and may deposit to the same repository. The transfer of these emails from Restoring Liberty to Joe Miller or Citizens for Joe Miller without value paid constitutes a substantial illegal corporate contribution given the value of each email and the volume of emails illegally donated. This particular offense is particularly serious considering that the actual revenue value of email addresses is estimated to be as high as $40 each.¹ Furthermore, the intentional nature of this offense is demonstrated by the fact that Miller's own FEC report demonstrates that he is aware that such lists have substantial cash value. (Exhibit M, p. 63)

An email was sent from the Restoring Liberty, LLC website on September 12, 2016 with the subject: "I need your help, Patriot." That email advocated the defeat of incumbent Senator Lisa Murkowski and requested donations to the campaign for Joe Miller. However, the email failed to include any disclaimer indicating who paid for the communication. (Exhibit H)

Joe Miller maintains a YouTube channel located here (<https://www.youtube.com/user/JoeMillerUS>). This channel contains several endorsements, as well as a number of advertisements ads. There is also a radio ad that is included on the channel that includes the campaign sign – it does not include any type of disclaimer.

In addition, Citizens for Joe Miller has failed to include required campaign disclaimers on multiple items. He has sought solicitations on his various internet platforms without including the required disclaimers. Joe Miller and his campaign have posted campaign signs without the required disclaimers or with incorrect disclaimers. (Exhibit I) This was of particular concern where Joe Miller was soliciting donations with the specific purpose of paying for airtime to play certain campaign advertisements, but the page contained no disclaimer. (Exhibit J)

Most recently, on October 19, 2016, Joe Miller further utilized corporate resources in order to publish an editorial advocating for the defeat of Senator Lisa Murkowski. (Exhibit K)

Joe Miller appears to be recruiting poll watchers through a third-party website. His campaign pictures are posted, however the website again contains no disclaimer. (Exhibit L)

On October 16, 2016, the most recent quarterly disclosure report of Citizens for Joe Miller was acknowledged as received. (Exhibit M) This report demonstrates that Joe Miller and Citizens for Joe Miller have failed to properly record certain income and expenditures, while at the same time inflating other expenditures. The following examples demonstrate the campaign's failure to comply with law and regulation:

- Citizens for Joe Miller claims an in-kind donation from the Alaska Republican Party in the amount of $4,500.00. (Exhibit M, p. 62) However, no such donation was made by the Party, and the statement is false and appears intended to show a source of support that does not exist.
- Citizens for Joe Miller reports an in-kind donation in the form of a donor list from Combat Veterans for Congress PAC, specifically acknowledging that such lists have value, in spite of the fact that the campaign has not provided any compensation for its use of the email and other lists generated and owned by Restoring Liberty, LLC. (Exhibit M, p. 63)
- Citizens for Joe Miller reports an in-kind donation in the form of ground transportation in the amount of $3,000. (Exhibit M, p. 64) Apparently Mr. Miller is reporting his use of his personal vehicles as a contribution by him to his own campaign. Since he announced his candidacy only during the first week of September he is claiming campaign use in an amount in excess of $100 per day which on its face is unnecessary appears intended to inflate perceptions of support for his campaign.
- Citizens for Joe Miller has failed to report any payments to either Restoring Liberty, LLC and/or Joe Miller with regard to the use of the corporate website, email lists, and other like items, confirming that the campaign has indeed accepted illegal corporate donations.
- Citizens for Joe Miller has failed to report any expenditures for the use of the Twitter and/or Facebook accounts that are owned by Restoring Liberty, LLC and were in use prior the campaign, again confirming that the campaign has indeed accepted illegal corporate donations.
- Since filing as a candidate Citizens for Joe Miller maintains a campaign office in Anchorage, Alaska, but has failed to identify any associated contribution, expenditure, debt and/or loan with regard to the rent of such space. It is appears that this headquarters (located at 607 West Northern Lights Boulevard) is being provided by the owner at no cost. This is an unreported in-kind contribution. It is also either an excess contribution or an unlawful corporate contribution.

- New campaign materials were created for the current election cycle, including signage with Citizens for Joe Miller's website (joeformliberty.com). Joe Miller's prior campaign website (joemiller.us) was converted to use by Restoring Liberty, LLC. These materials include, but are not limited to, dozens of large billboard signs with a value of thousands of dollars. These new materials were produced for use with Joe Miller's current election campaign, however, no donation, expenditure, debt and/or loan appears on the report for such an expenditure.

Joe Miller is a licensed attorney and has served as a US Magistrate Judge. He has run two prior campaigns for the U.S. Senate in 2010 and 2014. He must be assumed to be familiar with the requirements of law.

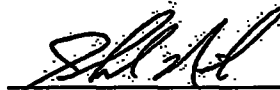

Yet, as the above and the attached evidence establishes he, his campaign and his personally owned LLC have disregarded the prohibitions on corporate donations to federal campaigns, used corporate resources without paying for them, accepted corporate contributions, solicited campaign donations without proper disclaimers, filed false and incomplete disclosure reports and otherwise violated federal campaign laws and regulations. These are very serious violations of law and I respectfully request the Commission review this complaint on an expedited basis.

At Stake: The Constitution

Oct 12, 2016 01:03 am

This election is about a lot of things, but it is fundamentally about the U.S. Constitution and whether federal judges will adhere to their oath to "... faithfully and impartially discharge and perform all the duties incumbent upon me ... under the Constitution and laws of the United States," or dilute, attack and destroy our founding document.

Miller: Apparently Murkowski Would Rather Have A Hillary Clinton Presidency

joemiller.us/2016/10/miller-apparently-murkowski-rather-hillary-clinton-presidency/

Citizens for Joe Miller Press Release

Anchorage, Alaska. October 11, 2016 — Joe Miller reacted on Tuesday to Lisa Murkowski's decision not to back Republican presidential nominee Donald Trump and her forced resignation from the Alaska Republican Party State Central Committee.

On Friday, Murkowski stated, "I cannot and will not support Donald Trump for president. He has forfeited the right to be our party's nominee."

"Presumably Murkowski's proclamation that she will not support Trump means she would prefer to see Hillary Clinton in the Oval Office," said Miller.

"Though it's now official, the truth is Lisa Murkowski left the Republican Party a long time ago," he added.

She has now lost her right to vote in the Alaska Republican Party, and is officially a Republican-In-Name-Only.

In 2010, Murkowski reneged on her word and enlisted the help of Democrats to run against the Republican Party nominee for U.S. Senate.

She was the most liberal "Republican" up for re-election then, and she is once again now.

She voted 72 percent of the time with Obama during the last Congress, while touting in campaign ads that she's

EXHIBIT C

"The Conservative Voice for Alaska" in Washington, D.C.

Her votes have earned her an "F" rating from the Conservative Review, FreedomWorks, and Heritage Action.

Even disgraced New York Democrat Congressman Charlie Rangel earned a higher score with Conservative Review.

"A Hillary Clinton presidency would be a disaster for the country, keeping us on Barack Obama's road to ruin. If she wins, the Supreme Court will be lost for a generation," said Miller.

Joe Miller is a limited government Constitutionalist who believes government exists to protect our liberties, not to take them away. Thick as Thieves: Murkowski, Alaska's Political Establishment, and the PFD Grab joemiller.us/2016/10/murkowski-alaska/

Matt Johnson

Ever wonder why our politicians never seem to represent us? Keep reading.

Alaska Dispatch News recently reported that telecommunications giant GCI funneled more than $2 million into the Alaska's Future campaign in an attempt to strong-arm the legislature into a PFD grab that would direct half of the designated statutory payout to fund State deficit spending.

Over the past week, US Senate candidate Joe Miller has flooded the radio airwaves with an ad highlighting Senator Lisa Murkowski's repeated attempts to tap the Permanent Fund for State spending while she was a State legislator, and reminding voters of the fact that Murkowski made statements earlier this year that appear to double-down on support for the PFD grab.

But is there really a connection between the corporate-sponsored Alaska's Future campaign to take Permanent Fund earnings from Alaskans and Senator Lisa Murkowski?

Here's what I found.

While Alaska's Future campaign is a bipartisan group, run by Senator Dan Sullivan's campaign manager Ben Sparks and former Senator Mark Begich's spokeswoman Heather Handyside, it is in large part a campaign funded and directed by Murkowski donors. She is, in fact, the common denominator.

The Washington DC-based consulting firm, Black Rock Group, who is working Lisa Murkowski's US Senate campaign is also consulting the Alaska's Future campaign.

Alaska's Future Co-Chair Ron Duncan of GCI has personally given the maximum $5,400 to Lisa Murkowski's 2016 re-election campaign, and donated to numerous PACs who have funneled thousands more into the senior senator's coffers.

At least three of Duncan's Vice Presidents at GCI have donated a combined $9,900 more in personal contributions, and have also donated to PACs supporting Murkowski with thousands more.

Co-Chair Helvi Sandvik, President of NANA Development Corporation, has personally donated $3,500 to Murkowski, and steered an additional $7,000 to her from the NANA Development Corporation Inc. PAC.

Co-Chair Sophie Minich, President and CEO of the CIRI Corporation, is a past Murkowski donor.

No less than 17 of the 32 Alaskans named to the Alaska's Future Leadership Council have either endorsed Murkowski or donated to her, or to PACs that have donated no less than $34,875 to her campaign.

Further, corporate members have donated tens of thousands more through their PACs, and this before the latest disclosures have been posted to reflect donations since Murkowski picked up a legitimate challenger in the senate race.

Murkowski also has the backing of the AFL-CIO, whose leader in Alaska, Vince Beltrami, reportedly assisted GCI chief Ron Duncan with lobbying efforts in Juneau.

With just a handful of exceptions, the remainder of the Alaska's Future Leadership Council are donors to either sitting Senator Dan Sullivan or former Democratic Senator Mark Begich.

And to no one's surprise, not one member of the group trying to grab your PFD has donated to any of Joe Miller's three US Senate campaigns.

Alaska's Future is a thinly veiled pay-to-play racket. They give money to the politicians, who take your money, and give a portion back to them. And the favor is returned come election time. This is what we call a quid pro quo. Everyone wins but the taxpayer.

And you wonder why Senator Murkowski offers consent to the politicians stealing your PFD? Wonder no more. Follow the money. The permanent political class is indeed thick as thieves, and they're all in this thing together.

Thankfully, Joe Miller fought back, drafting the Save The PFD recall petition application in July.

And how can we fight back? Elect a man to the United States Senate who isn't party to the theft.

In early September, when United States Senate Libertarian nominee Cean Stevens decided to step down, Joe Miller agreed to replace her on the ballot. He is the only viable candidate in the US Senate race capable of displacing this cabal and giving ordinary Alaskans a truly independent voice in Washington.

Citizens for Joe Miller Press Release

Joe Miller responded today to the news that incumbent Lisa Murkowski is refusing to debate on Alaska's most-watched television station.

"Lisa Murkowski is scraping the bottom of the barrel to come up with excuses for not showing up for her job review," Miller said. "She's hiding from Alaska and making excuses. It simply makes no sense to say you want to debate before a broad swath of your constituency while avoiding the largest state-wide television audience."

Murkowski has agreed only to "debates" sponsored and moderated by her supporters and donors, or, in the case of public television, a venue dependent upon her for tax-payer subsidies.

There is no doubt to an impartial observer that the senator is running from public dialogue, and the issues most pressing to a majority of Alaskans.

Miller concluded, "This is typical behavior for a member of the Incumbents Club. Always up for a contest, as long as it's rigged. Special favors for special interests. She's determined to get this election into the special interest weeds so she doesn't have to answer for what she's actually been doing in Washington DC. Alaskans deserve better."

Alaska Family Action Endorses Joe Miller for U.S. Senate

Citizens for Joe Miller Press Release

Alaska Family Action, the political arm of Alaska Family Council, announced its endorsement of Joe Miller for U.S. Senate on Wednesday.

In a statement, Alaska Family Action president Jim Minnery said the AFA's board of directors voted to back Miller because he "has been a consistent and outspoken supporter of religious liberty, protections of the unborn, support of traditional family policies and parental rights."

The AFA statement went on to point out that incumbent Sen. Lisa Murkowski received an "F" rating (just 20 percent) from Conservative Review on its Liberty Scorecard and scored 35 percent on the Heritage Action Scorecard for her votes.

The average for Republican senators on the latter is 57 percent, while conservative senators like Mike Lee and Ted Cruz scored 100 and 97 percent, respectively.

Murkowski is the most liberal "Republican" senator up for re-election, having voted with Pres. Obama 72 percent of the time during the last Congress, according to Roll Call.

She received an 80 percent rating from NARAL Pro-Choice America.

Minnery's statement concluded, "Alaska Family Action is proud to get behind a bold pro-family, pro-life candidate like Joe Miller who can help turn this country around."

Senate Candidate Joe Miller Agrees With Bill Clinton: Obamacare is 'Crazy'

 Joemiller.us/2016/10/senate-candidate-joe-miller-agrees-bill-clinton-obamacare-crazy/

Citizens for Joe Miller Press Release

U.S. Senate candidate Joe Miller agreed on Wednesday with former President Bill Clinton's assessment that Obamacare is "the craziest thing in the world" and called out Sen. Lisa Murkowski for merely seeking to "fix" the law.

The Hill reported on Tuesday that former President Clinton "steamrolled President Obama's signature healthcare law" saying:

"You've got this crazy system where all the sudden 25 million more people have healthcare and then the people are out there busting it [at their jobs], sometimes 60 hours a week, [and] wind[ing] up with their premiums doubled and their coverage cut in half."

"It's the craziest thing in the world," he added.

Miller stated, "Bill Clinton got it right. Obamacare is crazy. I have fought this legislation from its inception."

"Following the law's passage in the Senate in the spring of 2010—through the dubious means of budget reconciliation—I called out Sen. Murkowski for joining the Republican surrender caucus and giving up on repeal. Repealing Obamacare is the only answer," said Miller.

Local NBC affiliate KTUU ran a story following the law's passage in March 2010, reporting that Murkowski viewed the law as a "work in progress."

EXHIBIT C

The senator stated, "Repealing this is not the answer, in my opinion, because if you just repeal and you do nothing, we will not have addressed healthcare reform."

During a town hall in Anchorage in August 2009, as the healthcare legislation was being considered in Congress, Murkowski said, "It's not so much that a government run plan is in and of itself a bad thing . . . What we have to have is a government-run plan that actually works."

Murkowski voted against the effort to defund Obamacare in 2013, and while she did vote to repeal the law in December 2015, she, along with Sen. Susan Collins of Maine, introduced an amendment seeking to remove language that defunded Planned Parenthood.

Murkowski recently reiterated the view that government has a significant role to play in healthcare in an op-ed in the Alaska Dispatch News in May: "Until the Affordable Care Act is truly affordable for Alaskans and actually increases access to care, I will not ease up on my efforts to fix this unworkable law."

"The senator's big government mindset is entirely wrong," said Miller. "More government involvement in the healthcare market has done exactly what I predicted: drove costs up exponentially and decreased options for Alaskans."

Miller concluded, "I will not go to Washington with plans of 'fixing' Obamacare. I will fight to fully repeal Obamacare."

Joe Miller is a limited government Constitutionalist who believes government exists to protect our liberties, not to take them away. He supports free people, free markets, federalism, the Constitutional right to life, the 2nd Amendment, religious liberty, American sovereignty, and a strong national defense.

Radio Talk Show Host Lars Larson Endorses Joe Miller for U.S. Senate

joemiller.us/2016/10/radio-talk-show-host-lars-larson-endorses-joe-miller-for-u-s-senate/

Citizens for Joe Miller Press Release

Anchorage, Alaska. October 4, 2016 — On his program on Monday evening, nationally syndicated talk show host Lars Larson endorsed Libertarian candidate Joe Miller for U.S. Senate in Alaska.

"One of the last places in the world you'd expect to find a RINO Republican would be Alaska and yet there is one there named Lisa Murkowski," said Larson.

He continued, "And the man who is running to beat Lisa Murkowski and replace her in the senate is a guy I feel very strongly about, Joe Miller."

Miller agreed with Larson's assessment about Murkowski. "She's wrong on every conservative plank almost of the Republican Party. In fact, I align far closer to that than she does. It's one of the reasons we had such a push to get into the race from Republicans," said Miller.

After a member of the Alaska Republican Party's Central Committee was expelled for openly backing Joe Miller over Murkowski, five others stepped down in order to do so. (Listen to some of them speak about their decision in the radio ad below.)

Miller has also been endorsed by conservative radio talk show host Mark Levin, Alaska Right to Life, Gun Owners of America, Combat Veterans for Congress, and has the backing of the Alaska Republican Assembly.

Murkowski Insider, KTVA's John Tracy, Fails to Declare Conflict of Interest in PFD Grab joemiller.us/2016/10/murkowski-insider-ktvas-john-tracy-not-declare-conflict-interest-pfd-grab/

News Editor

Former Murkowski media consultant John Tracy this week took on the topic of Bill Walker's PFD grab on his weekly television spot "Reality Check," defending the embattled governor and suggesting that Alaskans opposed the governor's legally dubious executive action are being unreasonable.

It's time to "reality check" John Tracy.

Tracy suggests it is ordinary Alaskans who don't want to just hand their money over to an outsized, wasteful and confiscatory government who are being unreasonable, not the government that is deficit spending at a reported $360,000 an hour.

He even goes so far as to invoke the Alaska Constitution as justification for confiscating the common property of all Alaskans for the benefit of a few.

But the section cited explicitly states: "the fund should provide a means of conserving a portion of the state's revenue from mineral resources to benefit all generations of Alaskans."

What Tracy never begins to explain is how diverting those resources to some Alaskans now, without fixing the underlying problem, serves the interests of all Alaskans now, much less benefits "all generations of Alaskans."

He further compounds his error by suggesting the PFD is an "entitlement," rather than just compensation for private property taken by the State of Alaska, our mineral rights.

At first blush it would appear Tracy is just another arrogant elitist blowhard, but when one scratches below the surface something else altogether emerges.

John Tracy's high-sounding rhetoric about Governor Walker's knowing the difference between politics and governing – read, being a statesman – is nothing more than a manipulative ploy to cover for his bosses.

The truth is, Tracy is being paid big bucks by KTVA to say what he says. KTVA is owned by GCI, whose President and CEO Ron Duncan co-Chairs the Alaska's Future campaign, a special interest cabal comprised of major corporations, unions, and corrupt politicians pushing to take ordinary Alaskans' PFD to solve the State's fiscal woes.

Duncan has gone so far as to blackmail our politicians by threatening to pull as much as $220 million in planned capital improvements off the table if the State government doesn't comply with their demands.

John Tracy further has counted Senator Lisa Murkowski among his major clients, who has for years favored the PFD grab, dating all the way back to her days in the State legislature before her father appointed her to the United States Senate.

Even over the objections of a whopping 83% of Alaskans, Murkowski co-sponsored and voted for legislation to take your PFD, a measure her father backed strongly as governor of Alaska.

Earlier this year, Senator Murkowski reiterated her support for an all-options-on-the-table approach to the State's budget shortfall, including your PFD.

John Tracy is certainly entitled to his opinion, but he owes Alaskans a full accounting of his rather substantial conflicts of interest. Because maybe, just maybe, his opinions are shrouded in self-interest.

In the interest of full disclosure, Restoring Liberty publisher Joe Miller drafted the Recall Walker petition application that is circulating around the state.

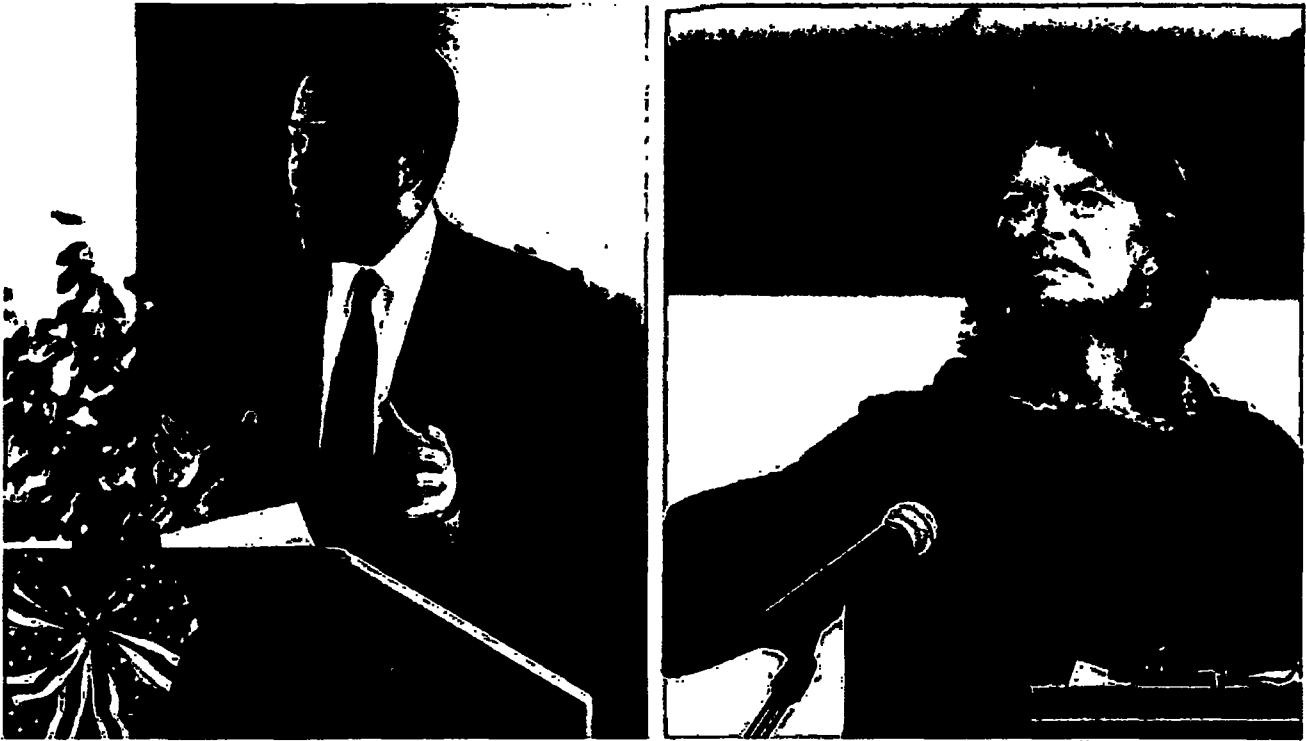

Here's hoping the mainstream media catches up to speed on full disclosure.

Libertarian Joe Miller Blasts Lisa Murkowski for Yet Another Dereliction of Duty

 joemiller.us/2016/09/libertarian-joe-miller-blasts-lisa-murkowski-yet-another-dereliction-duty/

Citizens for Joe Miller Press Release

Anchorage, Alaska. September 30, 2016 – Alaska Libertarian nominee Joe Miller blasted Lisa Murkowski on Friday for voting to fund the government again without any meaningful concessions from the Obama Administration.

"It's dereliction of duty," said Miller. "Thursday's vote to give President Obama a blank check with no accountability is exactly why we need to replace incumbents like Lisa Murkowski. There is simply no pushback from our federal delegation. It's really sad."

Democrats and Republicans alike have corrupted the process and relinquished their Constitutional authority to the Executive Branch.

According to Conservative Review:

"This government funding bill funded all aspects of the federal government from October 1 through December 9, 2016. Absent from this budget bill was any sort of meaningful limitations on a single illegal, abusive, or harmful executive action taken by President Obama.

"In fact, this spending bill funded every major policy priority of the Obama administration.

"Absent from the bill were limitations or reforms to Obamacare, Planned Parenthood funding, Obama's transgender bathroom mandate on the states, sanctuary cities, unconstitutional amnesty, or anything resembling a spending reduction or fiscal responsibility to address our $20 trillion debt."

Miller concluded, "Murkowski can come home and talk about federal overreach all she wants, but it's all meaningless drivel when she votes to fund every illegal and unconstitutional executive mandate perpetrated on the American people by this Administration. She has abandoned her oath of office."

Joe Miller is a limited government Constitutionalist who believes government exists to protect our liberties, not to take them away. He supports free people, free markets, federalism, the Constitutional right to life, the 2nd Amendment, religious liberty, American sovereignty, and a strong national defense.

New Poll Shows Miller Within Single Digits Of Murkowski

 joemiller.us/2016/09/new-poll-shows-miller-within-single-digits-murkowski/

Citizens for Joe Miller Press Release

Anchorage, Alaska. September 28, 2016 — A new poll released this week finds Libertarian U.S. Senate candidate Joe Miller within single digits of incumbent Sen. Lisa Murkowski in Alaska.

The People's Pundit Daily tracking poll surveyed 317 likely Alaskan voters and found Murkowski with 38 percent, to Miller's 30 percent, while Democrat Ray Metcalfe garnered 13 percent and 19 percent remained undecided.

Not included in the poll was left-leaning Independent senate candidate Margaret Stock.

A poll conducted in late August, prior to Miller's entry into race, had Murkowski at 56 percent to Metcalfe's 12 percent and Margaret Stock's 5 percent. In other words, the senator has seen a significant drop-off since Miller entered the field.

Though Alaska is notoriously difficult to poll, Metcalfe's consistent numbers in both surveys bolster the results as giving at least a rough picture of where the race stands.

It should be noted that Alaska has a strong conservative base, as evidenced by the Republican presidential primary results in March.

Sen. Ted Cruz, won the state taking 36 percent of the vote, followed by Donald Trump with 33.5 percent, Sen. Marco Rubio with 15 percent and Dr. Ben Carson with 11 percent. In other words, non-establishment Republicans accounted for at least 80 percent of the primary vote total in the state.

Miller's insurgent candidacy would appear best poised to benefit from the popular anti-establishment sentiment in the country.

"We like where we stand right now," said Miller campaign spokesman Randy DeSoto. "We are three weeks into this race, and Joe is within single digits of an incumbent U.S. senator who spent millions billing her herself as 'The Conservative Voice For Alaska' but having a record of voting with Obama more than any other 'Republican' senator up for re-election (72 percent of the time during the last Congress)."

"I believe when Alaskans learn that record, many of those undecided voters will move into the Joe Miller column," he added.

Joe Miller is a limited government Constitutionalist who believes government exists to protect our liberties, not to take them away. He supports free people, free markets, federalism, the Constitutional right to life, the 2nd Amendment, religious liberty, American sovereignty, and a strong national defense.

Citizens for Joe Miller Press Release

Anchorage, Alaska. September 26, 2016 — U.S. Senate candidate Joe Miller called out Lisa Murkowski on Monday following the release of her "debate" schedule, saying she is hiding from the people of Alaska and the media.

Murkowski stated that she plans to participate in four debates in the lead up to the election: Oct. 12 – Senate Fisheries Debate, hosted by Kodiak Chamber of Commerce; Oct. 21 – Alaska Federation of Natives' Candidate Forum in Fairbanks; Oct. 26 – Senate Debate on the Arctic, hosted by Iñupiat Arctic Business Alliance (IABA) in Barrow; Nov. 3 – Debate for the State, hosted by Alaska Public Media in Anchorage.

Only one of those debates will be televised statewide, the Public Television debate, which takes place just five days before the election, well after early voting and absentee ballot voting are underway.

"There she goes again, trying to rig the game," said Miller. "Senator Murkowski's objective is clear: avoid answering tough questions and deprive Alaskan voters of an informed choice."

During the general election of 2010, Miller appeared in multiple debates with Murkowski, though her name did not even appear on the ballot, including on the state's most watched news station, the NBC affiliate KTUU.

KTUU, which garners over 80 percent of the news viewing audience in Alaska, wants to host a debate this time, even offering to pre-record it, but Murkowski apparently stonewalled the station.

It also should be noted the commercial fishing industry, the Alaska Federation of Natives, and the Iñupiat Arctic Business Alliance all backed Murkowski strongly in 2010, both directly and indirectly.

EXHIBIT C

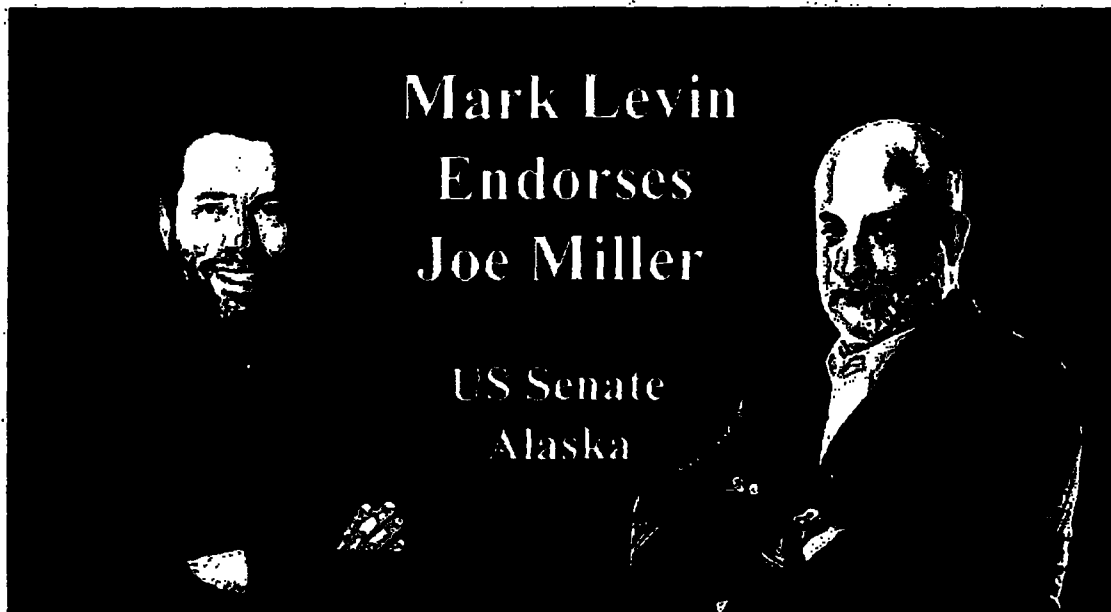

"The debate schedule Murkowski is offering is not fair to Alaskan voters, who are trying to make an informed decision about who will best represent their views in the next Congress," said Miller. "I am calling on Lisa Murkowski to do the right thing and participate in televised, open and fair debates."

Mark Levin Endorses Joe Miller For U.S. Senate

 joemiller.us/2016/09/mark-levin-endorses-joe-miller-u-s-senate-2/

Citizens for Joe Miller Press Release

Anchorage, Alaska. September 26, 2016 — Conservative radio talk show host Mark Levin endorsed Libertarian U.S. Senate candidate Joe Miller on his program Friday evening against incumbent Sen. Lisa Murkowski.

Levin described himself as a "big fan" of Miller, while observing, "Murkowski is a leftist" and the "right-hand person" of Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell.

The talk show host also pointed out that Murkowski earned an "F" on the Conservative Review scorecard, based on her voting record.

Despite being from the Last Frontier, "Murkowski acts like a Republican from New Jersey," said Levin.

Miller agreed, noting that her votes are "Not at all representative of Alaska values." He highlighted that the senator voted with President Obama 72 percent of the time during the last Congress, and his other rivals for the seat are left of center, as well.

"So we have a clear path to victory, and the grassroots are excited as can be that I'm in," said Miller.

Levin wondered if Miller's entry created the possibility for a Democrat to take the seat.

"No risk at all," the candidate replied. "We have a Democrat who will probably get less votes than the Democrat-leaning Independent who has raised over a half a million dollars and has the Democratic Party's support."

EXHIBIT C

Though no public polling exists following Miller's entry, the Murkowski campaign released a poll in early September, which showed the Democrat and independent candidates taking a combined 17 percent. Therefore, it seems very likely Murkowski and Miller will be vying for the top spot in the race, once again.

"This is a beautiful race where a true conservative has the opportunity to win, as long as everybody activates," said Miller.

Despite entering the race in mid-September, Miller has already garnered the endorsements of Gun Owners of America, Alaska Right to Life, and the support of the Alaska Republican Assembly. Additionally, five members of the Alaska GOP's Central Committee stepped down to back Miller and one was voted out for doing so.

Miller also has the support of the co-chair of Donald Trump's campaign in Alaska and the former co-chair of Sen. Ted Cruz's campaign. Cruz won the state's presidential primary with 36 percent of the vote to Trump's 33.5. In total, non-establishment candidates took over 80 percent of that vote.

Joe Miller Blasts Governor's Action, Murkowski's Long Time Advocacy For Regressive PFD Grab

Joe Miller Press Release

Fairbanks, Alaska. September 23, 2016 — Joe Miller today blasted Governor Walker's executive action stealing more than half of the Permanent Fund Dividend many Alaskans depend on for basic necessities.

"The governor's decision to make Alaska's most needy families pay for the politicians' irresponsible public policy is just outrageous," Miller said. "But the collective yawn coming from the rest of the political class is just as offensive. And there's good reason for that. Lisa Murkowski has been pushing this regressive policy to fund big government for years."

Murkowski co-sponsored a measure in the state legislature to use a portion of the PFD for government expenditures, despite an overwhelming vote of the electorate to reject the policy.

Murkowski was also a member of the Alaska's Fiscal Policy Caucus that recommended using PFD funds for state expenditures as well.

Earlier this year, Murkowski suggested that putting the PFD on the table as a solution to the state's fiscal woes was an appropriate option.

"But it doesn't stop there," added Miller. "Lisa's silence in the face of Governor Walker's illegal and unconstitutional PFD grab is reminiscent of her response to President Obama's repeated assaults on the Constitution and Congressional powers. In most of these instances, she has just been AWOL."

Months before deciding to run for Alaska's US Senate seat, Miller began working with grassroots Alaskans to stop the PFD grab.

Joe Miller Champions Principle Over Power Politics

 Joemiller.us/2016/09/joe-miller-champions-principle-power-politics/

Rod Perry

Breaking like a clap of thunder out of a clear sky, announcement by the Alaskan Libertarian Party that Joe Miller is running on their ticket for US Senate really electrifies this campaign. Suddenly, true constitutional conservatives and Republican Party Platform adherents have someone they can rally behind.

Simultaneously, it has stimulated visibility of the long-standing, widening gulf between the left-leaning GOP leadership and the mid-to -right-leaning party base. Mirroring the national Republican Party, Alaska's Good 'Ol Boys Club has long brushed aside their own official platform and bulled the party toward liberalism. They repeatedly demonstrate to all who pay attention that their primary loyalty and effort is not to the jealous upholding of their party platform principles, but the tenacious maintenance of their Iron grip on party control and power, principles be damned.

GOP party bosses' regard for party politics and power over principle is plainly on exhibit as a matter of open record. The most cursory glance reveals their continued enthusiastic backing of Lisa Murkowski, whose track record is voting counter to the GOP platform and more consistently with the Democrats than all but one other US senator identified as Republican. Attempts by some of the true conservatives remaining active within the party to officially censure Murkowski for her consistent anti-party performance have been forcefully put down by GOP powers.

On the other hand, those same powers recently censured and damaged Lora Reinbold for her very straight-up adherence to GOP platform principles. Then just a few days ago party bosses openly threatened Amy Demboski for publicly announcing she will back the Alaskan Libertarian Party's US Senate candidate because he sticks to principles that line up with the Republican platform.

EXHIBIT C

Go figure!

Many loyalists to the conservatively constructed Republican Platform now find more commonality by gathering under outlying tents. One is the growing Alaskan Republican Assembly, "the Republican Republicans." The poster child of State Republican Assemblies, Ronald Reagan called them "the conscience of the Republican Party." Another tent is the surging Constitution Party, this election represented by six running for state office. Their platform is very similar to the Republican's. When asked to explain the difference between Constitution party and GOP memberships, leading Constitution Party candidate Pam Goode stated, "Essentially, the main difference is this: we mean it!"

Another gathering camp whose core values are close to the GOP's is the Alaska Libertarian Party, the ones who are presently banded behind Joe Miller. Note: Something these local libertarians would be quick to point out is this: Alaska's Libertarian platform is much closer to the Republican Platform than is the national Libertarian Party's. Most notably, the Alaskans veer from tenants of the national platform which so many conservatives take staunch exception to.

Former Republicans have gravitated to several other groups such as non-party-aligned Independents and Can't-Take-It-Anymore Fed Ups who have thrown up their hands and given up on voting, period.

To make it very simple, every one of these outlying groups believes in and practices platform principles far closer to the Republican Platform than do so-called "Republicans" who run the GOP and their RINO senator.

Now turning from GOP Good 'Ol Boys grime to focus on something bright and exciting to those on the right: true conservatives of all parties and non-parties now have a U S Senate candidate in Joe Miller who sticks tighter than bark on a birch as an unbending Constitutional, rule-of-law adherent and is as uncompromisingly conservative—both fiscally and socially—as they come.

Joe Miller: Alaskans Deserve Debates From U.S. Senate Candidates

joemiller.us/2016/09/miller-alaskans-deserve-debates-u-s-senate-candidates/

Citizens for Joe Miller Press Release

September 21, 2016 — U.S. Senate candidate Joe Miller stated on Wednesday he is eager to debate Senator Lisa Murkowski, and the other contenders for the seat she currently occupies, about the issues vital to the future of Alaska and the country.

"Alaskans are not satisfied with the current direction of our state and nation," said Miller. "They deserve the opportunity to see the candidates for U.S. senate make their case, and regarding Senator Murkowski, justify her votes, in televised events available to the public at large."

Murkowski is the most liberal "Republican" up for re-election, having voted with President Obama 72 percent of the time during the last session of Congress.

Multiple local news affiliates are seeking to host televised debates. To date, as far as the Miller campaign has been able to determine, Senator Murkowski has failed to commit to most, if not all, of those debates.

"As has been the case in years past, Alaskans deserve debates in a format that allows for the free exchange of ideas, where candidates will be given the opportunity to directly question each other and offer rebuttals, so the event is not merely a series of unchallenged soundbites," said Miller

joemiller.us /2016/09/top-alaska-gop-officials-resign-rather-back-liberal-murkowski-libertarian-joe-miller/

Randy DeSoto

The Alaska Republican Central Committee voted over the weekend to remove one of its members due to his decision to back newly-minted Libertarian U.S. senate candidate Joe Miller instead of the state's moderate GOP incumbent Sen. Lisa Murkowski, while other members chose to resign to support the insurgent candidacy.

As reported by Western Journalism, Miller was the 2010 GOP nominee who defeated Murkowski in perhaps the biggest upset in the 2010 federal election cycle, running as "Alaska's True Conservative Choice."

Then, as now, Murkowski had the most liberal voting record of any Republican up for re-election. During the last session of Congress, the senator voted with President Obama and the Democrats 72 percent of time, second only to Sen. Susan Collins of Maine.

As in 2010, incredulously Murkowski branded herself as a conservative ("The Conservative Voice For Alaska") during this year's Republican primary in which she faced no challenger with statewide name identification. She easily prevailed in an election with the lowest voter turnout in recent history.

The senator looked like she was on her way to an easy re-election in the red state until last week, when Miller accepted the Alaska Libertarian's Party's invitation to replace its candidate, who had chosen to end her bid.

Alaska GOP party chair Tuckerman Babcock knew Miller's entry into the race was going to draw support from members of his party's top leadership and called on any who wanted to back Miller to do the "honorable" thing and resign.

EXHIBIT C

Dave Bronson, one of Anchorage's district chairs, did not believe he should have to step down just because he wanted to support Miller — whose positions align with the state party's pro-life, pro-family, pro-limited constitutional government platform — instead of getting behind a "Republican" senator whose votes do not.

Rather than resign, he put the issue up for vote at a central committee meeting last Saturday. Speaking before the body, he said "I am standing here before you because I am done with turning a blind eye to a Republican senator from Alaska who rejects our values and then expects our support every six years."

Bronson, who serves as a board member of the Alaska Family Council, highlighted Murkowski's claim to support traditional marriage during the 2010 election, then coming out not long afterwards in support of same-sex marriage. He also noted her vote to fund Planned Parenthood, even after the undercover videos revealed the organization was apparently guilty of selling aborted babies' body parts.

He stated, based on Murkowski's voting record and decision to run as an independent in 2010 against the Republican Party nominee, he does not doubt she would switch to being Democrat, if she calculated it would keep her in office.

"Disciplining me is the right thing to do," Bronson conceded though wanting to keep his seat. "I openly supported that candidate for the US Senate who best reflected the principles of the Alaska Republican Party. It just happened to not be Lisa Murkowski."

Reportedly, Bronson received hearty applause when he concluded his remarks from a significant portion of the audience with many rising to their feet to show their approval. However, the members of the Central Committee present voted 36 to 23 to remove him."

Four other district chairs and one member of the Rules Committee, to date, chose to resign their positions to openly back Miller, while others reputedly plan to do so privately because they do not want to lose their seats.

Shannon Connelly of Palmer (about 40 miles north of Anchorage), who was vice president of the Mat-Su Valley Republican Women until this weekend and a district chair, is another who decided to step down. She told Alaska Public Radio that, in Miller, she has a candidate, "who is pro-life, which is a major thing for me," adding, "I thought I can't just sit back. I have to stand for what I believe in."

The Alaska Right to Life endorsed Miller two days after he announced his candidacy.

In a release earlier this week, the group shot down the notion that Murkowski is "pro-life" as a campaign spokesman claimed and then was forced to walk back, noting Murkowski received an 80 percent NARAL Pro-Choice America score in 2014, in contrast to most GOP senators (like Ted Cruz, Mike Lee and even John McCain), who received a score of zero.

In an unprecedented move, the Alaska Republican Assembly (which has described itself as the Ronald Reagan wing of the GOP) endorsed Miller this week.

Like Connelly, Ron Johnson, a member of the assembly, chose to resign as a Mat-Su Valley district chair this past weekend to back Miller.

He told Western Journalism, "This allows me to work for a candidate that holds Republican values. I'm a Republican because of the party platform, not because of the party. Many of us are."

Johnson explained one of the reasons he decided to run for district chair was in response to how the Republican party failed to get behind Miller's candidacy in 2010 after he defeated Murkowski.

The senator waged a write-in campaign narrowly defeating Miller in a three-way race, 39 to 35 percent, with the Democrat garnering 23 percent of the vote. Between her and her father, a Murkowski has held the seat since 1981. This year's contest pits four candidates against each other: Murkowski, Miller, a left-leaning independent, and a Democrat.

Amy Demboski, a district secretary in Anchorage, is supporting Miller. She said party Vice Chair Rick Whitbeck threatened to remove her until she pointed out the Alaska GOP rules specifically state that only those who hold district chair positions or above are prohibited from publicly supporting anyone other than the nominee.

"Like many Alaskans, I don't do well with intimidation and threats," she said, and the GOP leadership backed off.

Demboski, who is a radio talk show host in the Anchorage/Mat-Su Valley area and was the Republican nominee for mayor of the city last year, affirmed Johnson's observation that the state party did not appear to back Miller in 2010. Further, it was her sense that then-chairman Randy Ruedrich and others in leadership actively worked against him behind the scenes, while supporting Murkowski.

Demboski could not help but note the irony of the GOP's loyalty test for Murkowski in 2016 in light of 2010, and pointed out the senator's co-chair in that race was current Democrat Lt. Gov. Byron Mallott.

"Nobody is talking about and the party is pretending it did not happen," she said.

Miller enjoys the support of not only Demboski, who is Donald Trump's co-chair in Alaska, but also Bill Keller of the Kenai Peninsula, who was Sen Ted Cruz's co-chair (along with Demboski and others) during the Republican presidential primary. Cruz won the primary with 36 percent of the vote to Trump's 33.5 percent.

Keller said people "have been really grumbling about Murkowski" since the 2010 race. Like other prominent GOP members in the Last Frontier backing Miller, he cites Murkowski's liberal voting record as the main reason he will not support her.

Alaskans appear in for a spirited contest to see who will represent them in the U.S. senate in January. A district chair, who voted against Bronson's removal, told Western Journalism that Miller's entry in the race creates the rematch people have waited six years to see. Alaska Republican Party Chairman Calls For “Honorable” Conduct, Implies Senator Lisa Murkowski Dishonorable and Selfish joemiller.us/2016/09/alaska-republican-party-chairman-calls-honorable-conduct-implies-senator-lisa-murkowski-dishonorable-selfish/

Matt Johnson

Late last week, Alaska Republican Party Chairman Tuckerman Babcock sent out a memo to members of the State Central Committee urging those who intend to support Joe Miller for US Senate to resign.

At issue is the following party rule: "No appointed or elected Republican party officers shall promote or be engaged in any activity that promotes the candidacy of any person for partisan political office other than a Republican running on a Republican ticket."

Babcock made his point no less than four times, stating in clear and unambiguous terms, "the honorable course is to resign your party office."

At first glance, it all seems straightforward, but when one looks at the facts of the case it becomes more difficult.

Lisa Murkowski lost the 2010 Republican primary to Joe Miller, then proceeded to run against Republican nominee Joe Miller, all the while maintaining her seat on the Republican State Central Committee. She was never disciplined, never censured, and never vacated her seat.

Chairman Babcock went on to suggest that those who don't voluntarily step down are not only dishonorable, but also selfish.

If this is the case, then apparently the party Chairman is suggesting Lisa Murkowski is both dishonorable and selfish, and to top it all off her record in the United States Senate stands in stark contrast to the Alaska Republican Party platform whose stated mission is "to elect and appoint to public office Alaskans with integrity committed to enacting solutions consistent with these [Republican Party] principles."

In essence, the Chairman is advocating that an obscure party rule be used to subvert the party's stated mission in the promotion of a candidate who has systematically disregard party rules and undermined party principles.

So are we to conclude that the Alaska Republican Party Chairman would have party officers exhibit honor by supporting dishonor?

Frantic Murkowski Spokesman Contradicts Senator, Tells Alaska Press Pro-Abortion Senator “Remains Pro-Life”

Citizens for Joe Miller Press Release

Citizens for Joe Miller Press Release
September 13, 2016, Anchorage, Alaska

Senator Lisa Murkowski, who has a long record of support for abortion “rights” and federal funding for Planned Parenthood, is apparently pushing the line that she is, and has been, a pro-life senator. Alaska Dispatch News reported on Monday that the Incumbent Senator’s spokesman said Murkowski “remains pro-life.”

“This is typical Murkowski, but a staggering assertion nonetheless,” said Joe Miller. “It’s a clear indication that the Murkowski campaign is in a panic over the loss of Republican support. But it also poignantly illustrates that Alaskans can’t trust anything she says. It’s all politics all the time. She has no principles.”

Early in her tenure in the US Senate, Murkowski voted for a Sense of the Senate Amendment that affirmed:

“It is the sense of the Senate that – (1) the decision of the Supreme Court in Roe v. Wade was appropriate and secures an important constitutional right; and (2) such decision should not be overturned.”

Murkowski has consistently stood in opposition to Ronald Reagan’s “Mexico City Policy,” which bans taxpayer dollars from flowing to foreign non-governmental organizations that perform or promote abortion.

The Senator has also been a strong advocate for federal funding of the nation's leading abortion provider, Planned Parenthood.

But that's not all, she has even defended Roe v. Wade on the Alaskan airwaves and accused Republicans of a "War on Women."

During the last session of Congress, Murkowski received an 80 percent rating from NARAL Pro-Choice America, while her Republican colleagues like Sen. Ted Cruz, R-Texas, and even Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., earned a 0 percent.

There's a reason Alaska Right to Life declined to endorse Murkowski during her 2004 run against Tony Knowles, and has subsequently backed Joe Miller.

But now that she's in a tough re-election fight she's throwing her liberal allies under the bus, and trying to pull the wool over the eyes of pro-life Republicans. It's not going to work.

Miller concluded, "Lisa Murkowski is a creature of Washington who governs one way and talks another. I think Alaskans are getting wise to the fact that she is playing both sides, but loyal to neither. As we saw in 2010, she'll do or say anything she thinks will get her the desired political outcome – which is of course re-election."

September 12, 2016, Anchorage, Alaska

Describing Incumbent Senator Lisa Murkowski as "the most liberal Republican up for re-election," and her record in the US Senate as one "laying siege on the Constitution," the Alaska Republican Assembly has issued an unprecedented statement of support for Libertarian nominee Joe Miller.

"Under this unusual election circumstance, we feel that supporting the Republican Party Platform is our paramount mission, and therefore we will be supporting Joe Miller for U.S. Senate," said President Daniel Hamm, further comparing Miller to Conservative stalwart Senators Ted Cruz, Mike Lee, and Rand Paul.

"I want to thank the Alaska Republican Assembly for standing firm for principle over empty party rhetoric," Miller responded. "The time for talk is past, our country will only be restored with bold action. I am proud to stand with these patriots."

The Alaska Republican Assembly joins a growing list of Republicans who are joining the effort to retire liberal Senator Lisa Murkowski and send a strong Constitutionalist to confront the corruption of Washington.

Joe Miller Files to Challenge Murkowski for US Senate Seat

Anchorage, Alaska, September 6, 2016 – At the urging of disenfranchised voters across the state of Alaska, 2010 Republican Nominee Joe Miller today filed his paperwork to run for United States Senate.

"Alaskans deserve a real choice," said Miller. "The choice between a Democrat, a Democrat-backed independent, and a Republican-In-Name-Only – who has been one of Barack Obama's chief enablers – is no choice at all."

With a near-historic low of 15.4 percent turnout and only 7.7 percent of Alaska's registered voters casting a vote for our incumbent senator in the primary, it is obvious that Alaskan voters wanted another choice.

Due to Libertarian candidate Cean Stevens' withdrawal from the race and a unanimous vote of the Alaska Libertarian Party's board of directors, Joe Miller will appear on the November ballot as the Alaska Libertarian Party Nominee. Miller seeks to be the first third-party nominee to win a federal seat in decades.

during the last session of Congress, second only to Sen. Susan Collins of Maine.

"The Conservative Voice for Alaska," as Murkowski dubbed herself during this year's primary election, ranks near the bottom of the American Conservative Union scorecard for GOP senators; was given an "F" grade by the Conservative Review for her voting record, and scores just 36 percent with the Heritage Action Committee ratings this session of Congress (34 percent lifetime), well below the 58 percent average for Republicans.

By way of comparison, Sen. Ted Cruz, R-Texas, who won the Alaskan presidential primary in the spring, scored 97 percent for his senate votes with Heritage Action, while Sen. Mike Lee, R-Utah, earned a 100 percent score.

Alaska deserves representation that will confront the corruption of Washington and reverse the disastrous, big government policies of the Obama era, not facilitate them. From encroaching federal tyranny and the surveillance state, to illegal immigration and economically devastating trade deals; from confirming activists judges and pushing globalist treaties, to using our military as an experiment in social engineering and undermining religious liberty; from systematically trampling on the Constitutional rights of the weakest and most vulnerable among us, to burdening our children and grandchildren with intergenerational debt; Lisa Murkowski has failed Alaska and America. It's time for a change.

If elected, Miller pledges to caucus with the Republican Party, but be a voice for reform on Capitol Hill and within the Last Frontier.

Miller stated, "I am grateful to Cean Stevens and the Alaska Libertarian Party for their vote of confidence. It is humbling. They could not have been more gracious and helpful. This is an historic opportunity for liberty-loving Alaskans to lead this nation to a post-partisan future of limited constitutional government. I'm calling on all Alaskans of good will to join us in this effort. Together we can make history!"

Joe Miller Press Release

Anchorage, AK – The Miller campaign today announced that all three of Lisa Murkowski's primary campaign challengers have confirmed they're voting for Libertarian Nominee Joe Miller in the November election.

"I'm humbled and honored by the support from Republicans across the state of Alaska," Miller said. "I want to take this opportunity to thank Bob Lochner, Tom Lamb and Paul Kendall for their votes of confidence, and I look forward to working with all Alaskans for the betterment of our great state and the country we love."

Republican runner-up Bob Lochner offered the following statement:

"I fully support Joe Miller for United State Senate. We have a Democrat and an Independent who are both liberal, and we have a Republican who is liberal. Lisa Murkowski is a walking contradiction . . . the farthest you can get from a conservative."

Air Force veteran and Republican candidate Thomas Lamb also pledged his support for Miller, stating:

"I'm endorsing Joe because he's an honest man, and I agree with him on 90% of the issues. With his military experience and knowledge of the Constitution, we need him in the United States Senate now. I'm honored to have a chance to vote for him."

Could Joe Miller Give Constitutional Conservatives a Choice Instead of an Echo in Alaska?

Daniel Horowitz

Is there one constitutional conservative actually running in a statewide election, who can excite the grassroots? Thus far, almost every conservative running for Congress has lost, but Joe Miller is about to change the rules of the game by delivering some just desserts to RINO Lisa Murkowski, R-Alaska (F, 20%) in Alaska.

Conservatives know they need a new party to represent them on the national scene, but for now it's important just to elect individuals down ballot in individual states — on any party line that grants them legitimate ballot access. After Lisa Murkowski, the Queen of all RINOs, ran a successful write-in candidacy against the GOP nominee, Joe Miller, In 2010, wouldn't it be poetic justice for Joe Miller to knock her off in a general election? While the tables are turned this time, and she is technically the GOP nominee, he will actually be on the ballot as a Libertarian, and didn't lose to her in the primary.

In many respects, Lisa Murkowski is the ultimate Republican-in-name-only, but in another respect she epitomizes what the party has become. A party that stands for nothing but a less enthusiastic expression of the other side's agenda. Murkowski has a 20% Liberty Score®, making a typical failing grade seem conservative! Here is what we wrote on her official CR Member Profile:

Murkowski is one of the most liberal Republicans in Congress and has moved even further to the left ever since winning re-election outside of the Republican party. Her votes align with liberals on spending, immigration, energy, subsidies, and foreign affairs. She is pro-choice and a member of "Republicans for Choice," and has publicly stated her support for the federal funding of Planned Parenthood. She is also a supporter of same-sex marriage and has a mixed record on gun rights, even though she hails from a strong hunting state.

Over her Senate career, Murkowski has time and again provided Harry Reid a critical vote to achieve cloture on Democrat priorities. Even on basic Republican values, such as right to work and welfare reform, Murkowski has consistently voted with the Democrats.

Murkowski makes John McCain look conservative. In recent years she has voted to fund Obama's amnesty, supported every radical Obama judicial and executive nominee, opposed school choice (while claiming to be "pro-choice"), and sided with Democrats on religious liberty to mandate that private companies fund abortifacients.

If this golden calf of supporting "the lesser of two evils" in a general election extends to this individual as well, count me out. As it is, the GOP Senate roster this year includes such luminaries as John McCain, R-Ariz. (F, 34%) Jonny Isakson, R-Ga. (F, 32%) Mark Kirk, R-Ill (F, 17%) Todd Young, R-Ind. (F, 53%) Rob Portman, R-Ohio (F, 49%) Kelly Ayotte, R, N.H. (F, 32%) and the transgender initiative-supporting Richard Burr, R-N.C. (F, 41%). Is there no floor to this failed binary approach, which has gotten us to where we are today? Imagine Democrats tolerating a slate of Senate candidates one year that is full of candidates exclusively in the mold of Zell Miller?

Thankfully, Alaska will actually get a choice, not an echo of the Democrat nominee. The nominee for the Libertarian Party in Alaska, Cean Stevens, stepped aside and the party selected Joe Miller to replace her on the statewide ballot for Senate in November. Unlike in other states, the Alaska Libertarian Party enjoys broad support, and coupled with Joe's existing name ID, there is a chance for him to win a 4-person race. Democrats and Independents have had enough of Murkowski as well. Some of the more liberal ones will vote for a liberal independent candidate on the ballot, while others will vote for the Democrat nominee. Joe Miller has an excellent chance to pick up the independent-minded ones, along with conservative Republicans.

In a year when conservatives have failed to field a constitutionalist on the general election ballot in almost any state, here is one race where they can actually vote their conscience proudly. Joe is a strong liberty-minded candidate who also deeply cares about sovereignty, national security, religious liberty, a strong civil society, federalism, and has a profound understanding of the threat from civilization jihad. For those of you who are tired of banging your heads against the wall between the false choice of Chambercrats and "Alt-Right" nationalist/populists, we finally have a man on the field.

Miller recognizes that he made some novice campaign mistakes in 2010 when he was under fire from all sides in the general election. He bounced back in 2014, and with no outside help he came within a few points of winning against Dan Sullivan, R-Alaska F, 56%) who has disappointed conservatives on multiple fronts since defeating Democrat Mark Begich for the other Senate seat.

Constitutional conservatives are caught between a rock and a hard place with no political home and are out of options for this election cycle. However, our republic will not rise or fall on your vote for president alone, but whether you acquiesce to this corrupt system or take your own destiny into your hands. This is why we must look at an all-of-the-above approach on issues, strategies, and elections to advance our agenda. In the state of Alaska, that means looking at the Libertarian candidate, who is really a constitutional conservative, against a woman who calls herself a Republican, but is the furthest thing from it. This is a race that should unite both those who are somewhat excited or disappointed about the presidential nominee.

A half century after Phyllis Schlafly rallied for "a choice, not an echo" in American politics, we are stuck with faint echoes who can't even hold the ground of the echoes of just one generation ago. It's time we begin striving for better than the low expectation of voting for the evil of two lesser. On a national scale, that will have to wait until next cycle, but in Alaska the opportunity is right in front of us. (For more from the author of "Could Joe Miller Give Constitutional Conservatives a Choice Instead of an Echo in Alaska?" please click HERE)

Alaska Right to Life Endorses Pro-Life Joe Miller Against Pro-Abortion Incumbent Lisa Murkowski in Race for US Senate

 Joemiller.us/2016/09/alaska-right-life-endorses-pro-life-joe-miller-pro-abortion-incumbent-lisa-murkowski-race-us-senate/

News Editor

Anchorage Alaska, September 7th, 2016 – Alaska's only Statewide group focused solely on the pro-life issue released an endorsement this morning of US Senate candidate Joe Miller. The endorsement comes on the heels of the announcement from Miller that he will again be challenging US Senator Lisa Murkowski, one of the nation's most notoriously pro-abortion Republicans.

"Miller has consistently held a pro-life position and has viewed the tragedy of abortion as the genocide that it is" said Christopher Kurka, Alaska Right to Life's Executive Director. "Once elected he will continue to be a true champion for the pre-born in the US Senate. Joe Miller is exactly the caliber of man we need fighting for the weakest of Alaskans in the Senate," Kurka continued.

With the general election only a little over 7 weeks away, Kurka said he is "calling on every life-loving Alaskan to throw their support behind the only pro-life candidate for US Senate. It's time for Murkowski to be replaced with someone who will take their oath of office seriously and do whatever they can to end the genocide of abortion that is taking the lives of millions of the most vulnerable of Americas populace – the pre-born."

Murkowski is well known as being a pro-choice Republican, earning a 80% approval rating in 2014 from NARAL

Pro-Choice America. Murkowski defends her support of Planned Parenthood, the organization that just last year was exposed in undercover videos showing their illegal sale of baby parts, by saying " I believe Planned Parenthood provides vital services to those in need and disagree with their funding cuts..."

"Senator Murkowski should remember that there are other organizations out there whose sole mission is to assist women in need, especially those in unplanned pregnancies. These organizations don't receive federal funding and they offer their services at no cost to their clients. Planned Parenthood is an abortion marketing machine and certainly doesn't have the best interest of women at heart." Kurka said later.

"We are excited to have a pro-life option on the ballot for US Senate this November and appreciate Joe Miller's willingness to take on the fight once again. Alaska Right to Life's Political Action Committee is proud to endorse him." Kurka finished, reminding voters that election day is Tuesday, November 8th and adding, especially for loyal Republican party voters, that "principles should win out over political parties every time".

Conservative Joe Miller Challenges Most Liberal GOP Senator up for Re-Election

The rematch for the U.S. Senate seat in Alaska six years in the making is on.

Joe Miller, the 2010 Republican nominee for the position, announced on Tuesday that he will oppose incumbent Lisa Murkowski running as a Libertarian, though pledging to caucus with the Republicans if he prevails in November.

"Alaskans deserve a real choice," Miller said in a release. "The choice between a Democrat, a Democrat-backed independent, and a Republican-In-Name-Only – who has been one of Barack Obama's chief enablers – is no choice at all."

The statement noted that while Murkowski billed herself as "the Conservative Voice for Alaska" during the Republican primary season (a slogan that has since been taken down from her website), the political branding does not match the record.

"Murkowski is the most liberal 'Republican' up for re-election having voted with Pres. Obama 72 percent of the time during the last session of Congress, second only to Sen. Susan Collins of Maine," Miller related.

The candidate also cites an "F" grade on the Conservative Review's scorecard of votes and a 34 percent lifetime voting record with Heritage Action. The average for Republican senators is currently 58 percent, with conservatives like Sen. Ted Cruz, R-Texas, and Mike Lee, R-Utah, earning 97 and 100 percent, respectively.

Joe Miller Announces Run Against Lisa Murkowski, Will Be on Alaska Ballot <https://t.co/zrnhMQDMYg>

— Joe Miller (@JoeWMiller) September 6, 2016

Miller shocked the political world in 2010 when he pulled off perhaps the greatest upset victory of the entire federal election primary season, defeating Murkowski.

Fairbanks Assemblyman Lance Roberts looks back at what Miller was able to accomplish with a sense of wonder. "It is amazing to me that he did it in a short time, and he had not had a political office before," he said. "He did a yeoman's job."

The former federal magistrate judge and West Point graduate announced just four months before Election Day, with no statewide name recognition and just $100,000 in his campaign coffers, which he put up himself. Murkowski had over $3 million on hand.

Miller garnered the support during the primary of former Alaska Gov. Sarah Palin, former Arkansas Gov. Mike Huckabee and many other prominent conservatives.

After her loss in late August, Murkowski went back on her campaign pledge to support the Republican primary winner and announced a write-in bid to hold on to a seat her family has held since the early 1980s.

A raucous campaign followed, which included some missteps by the green Miller and his campaign staff.

Though the tea party favorite and his team appeared to regain their footing by late October, based on polling showing a tight race going into Election Day, Murkowski edged out Miller, 39 to 35 percent, with the Democrat candidate, Scott McAdams, taking 23 percent.

As reported by Western Journalism, there is a strong conservative base within the Last Frontier's GOP, as evidenced in the presidential primary results earlier this spring. Cruz won the state in a upset, taking 36 percent of the vote, followed by Donald Trump with 33.5 percent, Rubio with 15 percent and Dr. Ben Carson with 11 percent. In other words, non-establishment Republicans accounted for at least 80 percent of the primary vote total in the state.

"People have been really grumbling about Murkowski," since the 2010 race, said Bill Keller, who was co-chairman of Cruz's campaign in Alaska.

In 2016, similar dynamics appear to be in play, with now four candidates vying for the seat including Miller, Murkowski, Democrat Ray Metcalfe and left-of-center independent Margaret Stock.

It is very likely the race will come down to Miller and Murkowski, once again. (For more from the author of "Conservative Joe Miller Challenges Most Liberal GOP Senator up for Re-Election" please click HERE)

Do Primary Elections in Alaska Work?

Joemiller.us / 2016/09/primary-elections-alaska-work/

David Eastman

According to the Alaska Division of Elections, Alaska taxpayers will pay roughly $2,000,000 to help state political parties choose their nominees this year (note: this does not count the presidential race, which does not use the state primary process). For the price of $2 million in state funding, we should expect an election process that works, and that benefits all Alaskans, right? It seems a fair assumption, but it is also a naïve one. If the past three election cycles are any example, Alaska's current primary election process has trouble meeting either expectation, which is one of the reasons fewer and fewer candidates are entrusting their bid for office to Alaska's primary election process.

Of course, in one sense, it is easy to say that the process has worked for the politicians and candidates who emerged victorious from last month's primary. Winning candidates can often be counted on to defend the process that led to their own election, even when that process utterly fails to deliver for most Alaskans. However, it should be noted that neither Alaska's governor, lieutenant governor, nor senior US senator won their election through the primary election process. In fact, all three participated in that process and then abandoned it in order to get elected. If bypassing the primary election process worked for three of Alaska's senior elected officials, why should other candidates not do likewise? And in fact that is what we are seeing today, as candidates openly consider write-in campaigns after primary losses, or bypass the primary entirely by running independent of a party label.

Even as a candidate who was successful in last month's primary, I would argue that it is fairly easy to see that the current primary election process is not working, and that it needs to be one of the places we look to make cuts in next year's legislative session. Let us set aside entirely the matter of whether Alaska's elections are being executed properly. They aren't, and that will likely be the final nail in the coffin of Alaska's primary system, but even if they were being executed flawlessly today, I would still have to conclude that Alaska's current primary election system has failed to deliver.

Voter Participation

According to numbers from the Division of Elections, 12% of Alaskans participated in the 2016 primary election (17% of registered voters). Our senior US senator received support from 5.4% of Alaskans (7.7% of registered voters), which pundits have already hailed as a landslide win. Obviously, her opponents received even less support. But these numbers alone do not tell the whole story.

Primary election participation in Alaska during presidential years has been in free fall since 2008. That year, voter turnout was 40.62%. By 2012, that number had dropped to 25.34%. Now in 2016, that number has dipped to 17.28%, less than one tenth of one percent away from the lowest voter turnout ever recorded and published by the Division of Elections in a federal election cycle.

Public Confidence

While primary election voter turnout is impacted by many factors, of greatest concern to me personally is the impact felt by changes in public trust and confidence in the primary process itself. Simply put, compared to 2008, voters today have less reason to believe that the results of primary elections will be maintained by the candidates and political parties involved. While the results of primary elections used to be a reliable indicator both of which party would be supporting a general election candidate, and of who would be appearing on the general election ballot for that party, today that is no longer the case. Let us review some notable examples, examples that many Alaskan voters will not soon forget:

 In 2010, after pledging to support whichever candidate won the Republican Primary, Senator Murkowski lost her race for the Republican Primary. Instead of supporting the outcome of the primary election, she began negotiations with the Alaska Libertarian Party to appear on the ballot as a Libertarian. When those negotiations failed, she pursued a successful campaign as a write-in candidate, a campaign co-chaired by Democrat Byron Mallott with public support from a number of Republican Party leaders.*

 In 2014, after a previous bid for Governor in the Republican Primary was unsuccessful, Gov. Bill Walker returned to the campaign trail as an independent candidate, with running mate Craig Fleener. In the primary election, Byron Mallott won the Democrat Nomination for governor and Hollis French won the Democrat Nomination for Lt. Governor. After the primary election, Mallott replaced Fleener and began campaigning as an independent, and neither Democrat nominee advanced to the general election as a Democrat.*

In fact, over the past three primary elections, Alaskan voters have witnessed a number of cases where candidates campaigned under a different party in the general election than they did in the primary, where voters changed party registration to influence the primary election of another party on behalf of their own party, where party leaders supported candidates other than their party's own nominees, and where the actual results of primary elections seemed to matter very little, as losing candidates either threatened or pursued write-in campaigns, and winning candidates were not assured of support even from their own party. In this type of environment, how do state-financed primary elections continue to make sense?

Party Discipline

This Saturday, the Republican Party will attempt to remove one of its own elected party leaders, Dave Bronson, from office. Ironically, the charge against him is that he has been encouraging voters to support, for US Senate, the candidate who best reflects the Platform of the Republican Party (note: the fracas arose because that candidate is not the candidate who won the Republican primary). Yet, while discipline may exist for party leaders who break ranks in defense of their party's platform, there does not yet seem to be any corresponding move to pursue discipline for Republican politicians whose official acts undermine the Republican Platform, or who campaign against their party's own nominees after losing in the primary.

Those trying to make sense of all this should realize that party leadership usually changes biennially, and those currently serving as party officers are likely to be different from those who held those positions two, four or six years ago. However, it does bear mention in the 2010 case, that Sen. Murkowski has had a vote in all official state party business since 2002, and at no point since 2002 has she lost that vote or had her representative removed from party office. In fact, when it comes to official voting leaders of the state party, she has been the one constant.

Conclusion

Perhaps it was once the case that state-funded primary elections served the public by bringing clarity to voters about what candidates of a particular party believed and the positions they would likely hold in office. However, today's primary election process seems to do more to confuse than to clarify.

When candidates no longer reflect the platform and values of their party, when those who win primary elections do not end up being supported by their party in the general election, when parties ask some of their nominees to drop-out (and others to join competing tickets), when candidates and voters no longer have confidence that the results of the primary election will be honored and maintained by political parties and fellow candidates, then you have all the ingredients for a confusing, dysfunctional system that most voters could simply do without.

Tell me, why should I vote in the primary, if the results of the primary election may not even matter? 83% of registered Alaskan voters chose not to participate this year. They had more important things to do with their time. At some point we need to step back and conclude that the state should not be subsidizing such a dysfunctional process, certainly not to the tune of $2,000,000 every election.

So , let's dig a little into the Lt. Governor's background for answers. In recent years, Byron Mallott has worked closely with our senior Senator Lisa Murkowski to violate the terms of ANILCA (Alaska National Interest Lands Conservation Act). The Lt. Governor, a former Sealaska Native Corporation CEO, supported legislation with Murkowski that would move more public land into the jurisdiction of Sealaska Native Corporation, a direct violation of ANILCA.

ANILCA defines the relationship of the federal government and the State of Alaska regarding land use and Alaska sovereign rights. This has been the mutual agreement since 1980. The only state agency that could bring public focus to these violations was CACFA, or the Citizens Advisory Council for Federal Areas. Unsurprisingly, Byron Mallott was not a fan of CACFA.

Looking the Governor's recent line item vetoes, one must ask why of 120 boards and commissions, Governor Walker chose to defund only one, CACFA. I would suggest it is the close relationship he enjoys with Byron Mallot. I will also suggest that if Lisa Murkowski retains her senate seat, we will see legislation from her which will attempt to advance land holdings for Sealaska Native Corporation, again, in violation of ANILCA but without the strong oversight of CACFA.

And, on this subject, how can any reasonable person think that Lt. Governor Byron Mallott will preside over the November election in a fair and impartial manner when he was the co-Chair for Lisa Murkowski's write-in campaign in 2010? Are we to assume that all is well in the Division of Election hen house with the fox presiding over the outcome?

This is the fodder of third-world countries. We must demand that our State government function with integrity and respect for the will of the people. We must demand election integrity if we intend to secure a quality legislature, both State and national, to represent "We the People" in a manner which operates within the rule of law. It is past time, Alaska.

What the Media Sycophants Won't Tell You About Murkowski's Primary Victory

joemiller.us/2016/08/media-sycophants-wont-tell-murkowskis-primary-victory/

Matt Johnson

At first glance Lisa Murkowski's Republican Primary election victory seems pretty impressive. But it is anything but the grand comeback story the Establishment media would have you believe.

Consider the competition.

Paul Kendall, local political activist, conspiracy buff, and self-acclaimed expert of all things futuristic. Nobody considers him a serious candidate, and I mean nobody. Yet he received almost 8% of the vote. No campaign, no advertising, a website that still reads "under construction" the day after the election. He wouldn't even respond to media questions about his campaign platform.

Thomas Lamb, blue collar worker, Air Force veteran, local blogger, unsuccessful candidate for the Alaska State House, and all around good guy. But his campaign consisted of a few scattershot radio ads and social media. He garnered between 5-6% percent of the vote.

Bob Lochner, a veteran and former mechanic who works on the North Slope. He didn't have a traditional campaign, and spent a grand total of about $20K, reportedly most of it on signs, pocket Constitutions, and campaign expenses. Unlike his fellow challengers, Bob had the good fortune of being from the Mat-Su Valley where the highest concentration of conservatives in the state reside. He garnered a very respectable 15%.

All good men I'm sure, but the obvious truth is that Lisa Murkowski didn't have a legitimate challenger. Still almost 29% of the electorate from her own party wouldn't vote for the sitting US Senate Energy and Natural Resources Chair in a state whose lifeblood is the energy industry, and that doesn't include those who voted and chose to leave the Senate portion of their ballot blank.

So what do the numbers really say? I'm glad you asked.

Lisa Murkowski decided to run against her party's nominee in the last cycle, ostensibly because only a small number of Alaskans voted for the nominee and that sample wasn't representative of the state. Joe Miller's 55,878 votes were only 11.5% of registered voters at the time. So maybe she had a point?

Well, neither of Alaska's sitting US Senators have ever won that many votes in a Republican primary, nor represented that much of the electorate in a general election. (Dan Sullivan received 44,740 votes, 9% of registered voters in 2014.

In 2004 Lisa Murkowski won a contested primary with – wait for it – 45,710 votes, just 9.98% of registered voters.

Fast forward to 2016. With 99.8% of precincts reporting, Lisa Murkowski cruises to an overwhelming landslide victory with 71% percent of the vote – drumroll – and a grand total of 35,208 votes, just 6.8% of registered Alaska voters.

And that was after she spent an astonishing $4.6 million, or over $130 per vote!

Not since 1974 when Alaska dominated by Democrats and Mike Gravel was a sitting United States Senator has a Republican nominee won less votes. Joe Miller's 32% second place finish in the three-way 2014 primary garnered more votes.

Clearly, by Senator Murkowski's standards, this is not a legitimate outcome, and clearly isn't representative of the Alaska electorate.

Perhaps Alaskans deserve another choice in the general election. After all, isn't that the gospel according to Lisa Murkowski?

Patriot,

Last Tuesday I filed the paperwork to take on establishment insider Lisa Murkowski for U.S. Senate.

And I'm pleased to report -- my name will appear on the ballot this November 8.

That's only 56 days out.

Time is short -- so I'm reaching out to my closest friends and supporters like you first to ask you to make a generous financial contribution to my campaign for U.S. Senate.

Exhibit H

Patriot, this effort will take funding.

The truth is, it can't happen without your support.

Lisa Murkowski spent the past two decades cutting deals for the Beltway Bandits -- and they've rewarded her for it by flooding her campaign coffers with cash.

I need your help to defeat her.

Will you invest in our effort today by making your most generous contribution of $25, $50, $100, or more?

As you may remember, I defeated Lisa Murkowski once back in 2010. That's why, with your help, I know I can do it again.

You see, the vision of our Founders is slipping away because Establishment "go along to get along" politicians like Lisa Murkowski go to Washington and sell out for more spending, bigger government, and less freedom.

Patriot, you've been a strong friend and ally through this journey with me.

I can't thank you enough for the support you've given me and my family in the past.

It is truly humbling to have a grassroots army standing with me as we carry the torch forward to restore liberty.

I hope you will continue to stand with me as we take on Alaska's #1 Establishment Republican in the U.S. Senate.

Our campaign for U.S. Senate in 2010 lit a fire under the grassroots and put Establishment Republicans on notice.

And despite being heavily outspent in 2014, you and I almost did it again.

Tens of thousands of principled patriots rallied to our cause and helped us take our message across Alaska.

Now I'm asking you to continue your support and help us carry our momentum to victory in Alaska.

You and I have a unique opportunity to win this seat and send a loud message to the Establishment.

But I can't do that without your continued friendship and support today.

Please make your most generous contribution of $25, $50, $100, or more toward our grassroots campaign to replace Lisa Murkowski today.

Thank you, Patriot, for your support.

For liberty,

Joe Miller
Alaska's Conservative Candidate
United States Senate

P.S. Patriot, I can't thank you enough for the support you've shown as we have carried the torch for liberty across Alaska these last six years.

Without you, we couldn't have made the impact we have so far.

Now I'm asking you to stand with me as we retire Lisa Murkowski from the U.S. Senate and send a true constitutional conservative to Washington from to represent Alaska.

Please make your most generous contribution of $25, $50, $100, or whatever you can afford today. Thank you.

U.S. Day of Reckoning?

Shocking details on new U.S. Treaty "A massive embarrassment of Obama."

Joe Miller: Murkowski Has Been A 'Big Part Of Problem' In DC

October 19, 2016 / by Joe Miller

Our nation and state are clearly on the wrong path. Alaskans feel it: mounting national debt, steep deficits, social unrest, and an economy that has all but flat-lined.

Unfortunately, Lisa Murkowski has been a big part of the problem, and to borrow a phrase from Ronald Reagan, "I cannot and will not stand by and see this great country destroy itself."

Murkowski stated earlier this month she "cannot and will not support" Republican nominee Donald Trump for president, meaning she presumably would rather see Hillary Clinton occupy the Oval Office.

Thick as Thieves: Murkowski, Alaska's Political...

U.S. Day of Reckoning?

Shocking details on new U.S. Treaty "A massive embarrassment of Obi

As Chief Executive, Clinton will fill the Supreme Court and the rest of the federal bench with liberal justices, while taking America further down President Obama's road to ruin.

During the last session of Congress, Murkowski voted with President Obama 72 percent of the time [http://www.rollcall.com/news/home/collinsmurkowski-most-likely-republicans-to-back-obama], making her the most liberal "Republican" senator up for re-election.

Because of her votes in Congress, the senator received an "F" rating [<https://www.conservativereview.com/members/li-murkowski/liberty-card/1>] from Conservative Review coming in below liberal New York Democrat Charlie Rangel.

Murkowski also garnered failing grades from Heritage Action and FreedomWorks. Family Research Council also gave her an "F" and National Right To Life, did so as well during the last session of Congress.

Meanwhile, NARAL Pro-Choice America recognized Murkowski as being an abortion supporter, giving her an 80 percent rating [https://votesmart.org/interest-group/1016/rating/7720#.WAgU7GNO_zl] for her votes in 2014. Just this past December, Murkowski offered legislation, along with Sen. Susan Collins of Maine, seeking to block Republican efforts to defund Planned Parenthood [<http://thehill.com/blogs/floor-action/senate/261988-gop-blocks-dems-on-planned-parenthood-push1>].

This is not the record of the "Conservative Voice for Alaska" [<http://www.alaskapublic.org/2016/06/02/lisa-murkowski-says-surprise-candidacy-followed-call-to-joe-miller/>] Lisa Murkowski claims to be in campaign ads.

Despite being from the Last Frontier, "Murkowski acts like a Republican from New Jersey," conservative radio talk show host Mark Levin charged on his program a few weeks ago when he endorsed my candidacy.

Murkowski's liberal, big government credentials are long-standing. While serving as a state legislator, she co-sponsored legislation [http://juneauempire.com/stories/021600/Bre_new to take part of your PFD and use it to fund state government and also voted to institute a state income tax.

Earlier this year, she suggested that your PFD should be on the table as a possible solution to the government's spending addiction.

Her record in Washington on issues that specifically impact Alaska is no better. The senator voted to confirm anti-gun Attorney General Eric Holder and anti-development, radical environmentalist Sally Jewell to be Secretary of the Interior.

Under Jewell's leadership, Alaskans saw control of another 100 million acres of their land ceded to the federal government over just the last few months.

Nearly two-thirds of Alaska's territory is already controlled by the feds, ranking second only to Nevada. Washington, D.C. should not be taking more of our land, it should be relinquishing it, as the Statehood Act (1958) requires.

Murkowski facilitated this most recent land grab in her position as chair of the Senate appropriations subcommittee on the Interior and Environment, when she voted to fund the very program that is responsible for the theft.

If you grant me the honor to serve as your next United States Senator, I'll fight to protect your interests, not special interests.

The Constitution will be the North Star that guides my decisions.

You have my word that I will stand up to the Establishment, in both parties, and be relentless in the fight to restore our nation to its constitutional foundations, where government is once again the servant, and not the master.

I will fight to rescind all of President Obama's unconstitutional executive orders, including executive amnesty.

Americans shouldn't lose their jobs or see their pay held down due to cheap, illegal labor.

Further, the administration's Islamic refugee resettlement must end, unless a means to adequately vet individuals seeking entry can be put in place.

Our foremost liberty is the right to life. I am the only U.S. Senate candidate that has been endorsed by Alaska Right to Life and Alaska Family Action.

The Second Amendment is essential to our liberty, and I will oppose all efforts to thwart this fundamental right. I am the only candidate in the race backed by Gun Owners of America.

As a veteran (endorsed by Combat Veterans for Congress) who has used Veterans Administration medical services, I will be tireless in ensuring our nation keeps its promises to those who have served our nation in uniform.

It is time for Alaskans to take control of our destiny. With courage and hard work, the fortunes of America and Alaska can turn again. I believe a return to constitutional government can restore the nation we know and love.

I would be honored to have your vote on November 8th.

Heavenly Father, I do not live in Alaska, but I am asking You to please have mercy on the residents of this beautiful state and put the RINO Traitor, who stole the last election, Sen. Murkowski, out to pasture, in Jesus' name, Amen.
